Luke 21:34-36–“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take you stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article written by Carolina Pulido Ariza titled “No Sympathy Left? Compassion Fatigue Can Happen to Anyone – Here’s How to Overcome It” was posted at studyfinds.org on Nov. 16, 2023. Following are excerpts of the article.

1. Acceptance

Don’t feel guilty for feeling disengaged from the news. It’s normal to find it distressing when hearing traumatic news stories, or seeing distressing images. This coping technique is called avoidance and explains why so many of us want to switch away from troubling things. Knowing and accepting that this is a normal response (given the circumstances) is the initial step to overcoming compassion fatigue.

2. Set boundaries

Take charge of your news intake by deactivating notifications and controlling when and how often you engage with it. Not only can this improve feelings of compassion fatigue, it may also have other benefits. For example, excessive social media use can disrupt sleep, so managing news consumption (especially before bedtime) can help.

3. Slow down

Witnessing others' suffering can trigger stress responses in our body – including an accelerated heart rate. If you find you are feeling anxious or stressed when consuming news, relaxation techniques (such as meditation and deep breathing) can help. Loving-kindness meditation may be particularly helpful for improving well-being and compassion. This meditation technique involves focusing on the positive and cultivating feelings of love, compassion and goodwill towards oneself and others.

4. Connect with nature

Taking a walk in nature can help reduce stress levels. This may also help to alleviate compassion fatigue, as elevated cortisol levels (known as the “stress hormone”) are linked to chronic stress, burnout and emotional stress – all of which can worsen compassion fatigue.

5. Be nurturing

Caring for plants or pets profoundly affects well-being. Nurturing living things fosters personal fulfillment. Companion animals can reduce negative emotions, mitigating some of the effects of compassion fatigue.

6. Take action

Try addressing problems you can solve instead of dwelling on insurmountable issues. Volunteering might be one way to do this. It's also linked to better mental and physical well-being. Charitable giving can also increase happiness and wellness, which may mitigate the effects of compassion fatigue. These concrete actions can restore a sense of agency – reducing the helplessness associated with compassion fatigue.

7. Seek support

If you're finding it difficult to cope or your compassion fatigue has been happening for some time, you might consider seeking support. A specialist or therapist may be helpful. But guided videos, tutorials or online meditation resources can also work.

An article by Editorial Board titled “Israel War: Why Obama’s [Comments Are] Worse Than Tlaib” was posted at nypost.com on Nov. 14, 2023. Following is the article.

“Poor Rashida Tlaib,” snarks The Wall Street Journal’s William McGum. “If only she had Barack Obama’s ability to couch the argument for moral equivalence between Israel and Hamas in terms acceptable to polite society.”

The House censured her for defending Hamas’ brutality and what amounts to a “genocidal call” to destroy Israel. Yet ‘her influence is limited’ because she’s recognized as “a left-wing kook.”

Obama isn’t so “crude,” but his call for “complexity” and claim that we’re all complicit clouds “moral distinctions” and undermines President Biden’s backing of Israel.

“When Rashida Tlaib makes the case for moral equivalence, she is outrageous and extreme. But when Barack Obama does, his argument is smooth and sophisticated. That’s what makes it all the more pernicious.”

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
