Luke 21:34-36—"But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man" (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Tuly Weisz titled “When Blood Spills on Passover and Easter, It’s Time to Build the Temple” was posted at jpost.com on April 18, 2022. Following is the article.

One would have hoped that yesterday’s unique convergence of Passover, Easter and Ramadan would have led to a wonderful day of peace and brotherhood in the spiritual capital city of Jerusalem. Alas, any dream of religious harmony on a day holy to all three great Abrahamic faiths, was shattered by Muslim rioters who turned the Temple Mount into a bloody battlefield hurling stones at Jewish worshippers and Israeli vehicles.

Palestinian terrorists have been fanning the flames of religious violence in recent weeks, as Israelis have been preparing for the Passover holiday, observed this week. On Thursday evening, April 8, a Palestinian terrorist attacked Tel Aviv’s busy Dizengoff Square where mainly secular Israeli young people were crowded at bars and cafes, tragically murdering three Jews in their 20s.

Shortly after the deadly massacre, Hamas explained their motive and declared, “The continuing terrorism of the occupation and its crimes, attempts to Judaize Jerusalem and to perform sacrifices in the Al-Aqsa Mosque to build its so-called ‘Temple’ during what they call ‘Passover’—against it stands blood and bullets.”

Through their statement, Hamas exposed their greatest fear: that Israel will start to build the Temple.

For thousands of years, Jews have been praying for a return to the Land of Israel. Over the last century, we have miraculously been restored to our homeland from the four corners of the earth, but are still awaiting the proper time to build the Temple.

Judaism is incomplete without the Temple, and Passover is a prime example, as Deuteronomy makes clear: “You are not permitted to slaughter the Passover sacrifice in any of the settlements that Hashem your God is giving you; but at the place where Hashem your God will choose to establish His name, there alone shall you slaughter the Pesach sacrifice, in the evening, at sundown, the time of day when you departed from Egypt.” (Deuteronomy 16:5,6)

Hamas is terrified that after close to 75 years of statehood, Israel will begin turning its attention to the place where God chose to establish His name. In fact, each year, more and more Israelis take the dangerous risk of ascending the holy mountain under the hostile guards of Jordanian officials.

Palestinian terrorists are getting scared as Jews are getting serious about restoring our holy of holies, the site we pray towards every day, and the building we beseech God for repeatedly throughout our liturgy.

On a national level, the rebuilding of the Temple would be a great humiliation to Palestinian terror groups, but on a religious level, the construction of Judaism's Third Temple would in no way pose a threat to Islam, whose main religious holy sites are in Mecca and Medina.

Responsible Jewish, Christian and Muslim leaders should use this recent wave of Islamic violence to immediately begin discussing practical and peaceful steps for the rebuilding of the Temple on the Temple Mount. It could be done without damaging or disrespecting the Dome of the Rock or Al Aqsa, as part of a future peace plan between Israel and her Arab neighbors to end the plague of Islamic terror once and for all.

During periods of history, Islam held great respect for Judaism's Temple in Jerusalem, and one can imagine many potential scenarios in the ever-changing Mideast, where significant segments of Islam could do so once again.

Similarly, for many centuries, Christianity looked at the Temple with hostility, but as relations between Jews and Evangelicals have improved in recent years, some Christians are rethinking their relationship with the Temple.

I asked John Enarson, the Christian relations director of Cry for Zion, a Temple Mount advocacy group, what his thoughts were on the connection between Easter and the Temple, and the implications for Christians today.

"We Christians have often thought that Resurrection Sunday spelled the end for the Holy Temple in God's plan," Enarson explained. "But when we read the Gospels and Book of Acts carefully, the Apostles continued to be passionate for God's House in Jerusalem, including Paul. As God is restoring Zion, we need to rediscover our own texts with Jewish glasses, and that includes God's Temple."

With more Christians coming alongside the Jews and becoming passionate about the need to rebuild the Temple in Jerusalem, we have a unique opportunity today.

Rather than lamenting the terrible violence that disrupted Passover, Easter and Ramadan, we must take steps to prevent religious violence from causing further blood to be spilled in the streets of Jerusalem. It's time for peace-loving Jews, Christians and Muslims to come together and build the "house of prayer for all nations."

An article by Michelle Malkin titled "GLSEN's Groomers in Plain Sight" was posted at creators.com on April 12, 2022. Following is the article.

Everything old is new again as a new generation of parents takes on kiddie-porn curriculum producers masquerading as anti-bullying crusaders. So let me repeat a warning I've issued repeatedly to families across the country: "Diversity." "Tolerance." "Safety." If a corporate-funded educational nonprofit targeting K-12 students employs those weasel words, get your kids as far away as possible, start following the money and stop being afraid.

For 25 years—yes, friends, a full quarter-century—I've reported on the perverse and pedophilia-promoting work of a massive propaganda network founded in 1990 and originally called the National Gay, Lesbian and Straight Teachers Network, or GLSTN, "to address homophobic and heterosexist behavior and bias in schools." Radical leftist community organizers in Chicago spearheaded GLSTN's hijacking of elementary, middle and high school classrooms under the guise of creating "safe schools." Through annual conferences, educator training, brainwashing films such as "It's Elementary," and dissemination of sexually explicit and age-inappropriate books, the group enticed children into the alphabet mafia and demonized Christian nuclear families who dared dissent.

GLSTN was renamed the Gay, Lesbian and Straight Education Network, or GLSEN, in 1997 as it expanded its political advocacy and deepened its coffers filled with cash from Fortune 500 companies targeting children including Hollister, Disney, YouTube, Urban Outfitters and Nickelodeon. Other major sponsors and contributors to GLSEN hail from Wall Street, pedo-clogged Hollywood circles: convicted sex predator Harvey Weinstein-tied talent agency CAA, Goldman Sachs, Wells Fargo, and Marilyn and Jeffrey Katzenberg.

I reported extensively on the vile and toxic GLSEN reading materials pimped by President Barack Obama's safe schools czar and GLSEN head Kevin Jennings in 2009, but I first learned of GLSTN/GLSEN's grooming activities in the fall of 1997 while an editorial writer and columnist at the Seattle Times from my friend Linda Jordan, a citizen whistleblower and relentless independent investigator.

Following is what I wrote at the time.

"Picture this: Two bare-chested boys embraced in a kiss. A third person, whose face is not shown but is also bare-chested, stands off to the side with his hand on the head of one boy. Below the vivid color photo, which is posted on the Internet home page of a group called 'AltKids,' is a caption explaining that the group provides a service 'in which gay and bisexual kids can find partners or friends of the same sexual orientation.' To post messages on the site's 'Alternative Connections' page, users must register not just their name and age, but their height, weight, hair color, eye color, address and phone number.

"Until last week, after West Seattle citizen activist Linda Jordan and other concerned parents complained to the school board, this on-line 'service' was advertised on the 'links' section of the National Gay, Lesbian, and Straight Teachers Network (GLSTN). GLSTN provides support to a chapter in Washington state, many of whose members are employed by the Seattle School District's Sexual Minority Advisory Council. The Council promoted the national GLSTN office's web site in literature made available to schoolchildren.

"Prior to Jordan's complaint, Seattle students had unlimited access to the GLSTN site and to the smutty AltKids link. After viewing the photos, the district's legal counsel, Mark Green, contacted the national GLSTN office, which has removed the AltKids link from its site pending further investigation. Green told me that district computer technicians have blocked the site from public school computers. Kudos to Jordan for making the schools safer. But where were all the district's guardians? What other exploitative materials are children being exposed to in the name of teaching tolerance and self-respect?"

Jordan had been raising hell about child sex abuse in the Seattle public schools and juvenile court system for years—and flagged the longtime allegations of young boys who accused powerful King County Superior Court Judge Gary Little of molesting them while he was a teacher and volunteer counselor. She could smell a child predator from a mile away, and she knew their habits. Little committed suicide outside his chambers hours before the Seattle Post-Intelligencer was set to publish a long-suppressed expose of Little's sex crimes against children and systematic abuse of power.

Everything Jordan told me was right. The newspapers and powerful NBC TV affiliate station had covered up Little's pedo record. So had the statewide Commission on Judicial Conduct.

One reporter told The Washington Post that local elites kept quiet about Little's creepy proclivities and suspicious sleepovers with juvenile delinquents because Seattle was "a liberal city" and "some people refrained from criticizing Little for fear of being accused of unfairness to gays."

And so it has been for the entire kiddie-porn industry that has metastasized in America's K-12 schools for at least 25 years, when I first reported on that internet pedo recruitment website in Seattle schools.

Silence is complicity. Complicity in the sexual exploitation of children in the name of "diversity," "tolerance" and "safety" is an unconscionable crime. The groomers aren't even hiding in plain sight. They've been out in the open, feeding on your fear and feasting on your children.

An article by Oliver North and David Goetsch titled "Biden's Family Scandal: Never Underestimate the Power of Blackmail" was posted at townhall.com on April 19, 2022. Following is the article.

The Hunter Biden coverup continues to unravel and, as it does, questions about the president's involvement become harder to dodge. Hunter's nefarious dealings with what at the time was China's largest energy company, CEFC, are well-documented, as are his questionable activities in Russia and Ukraine. The concept is known as influence peddling, a smarmy practice refined to an art form in "the swamp."

Hunter Biden's "take" from Russia while his father was vice president was reportedly at least $3.5 million, for which he did nothing but be Joe Biden's son. Now, Joe Biden is president of the United States and is directly accusing Russian President Vladimir Putin of war crimes and genocide in Russia's invasion of Ukraine. The possibility of blackmail is undeniable.

Hunter Biden never provided any substantive service to his foreign patrons. He was widely known to be a spoiled, profligate son of privilege. All Hunter Biden ever peddled to China, Russia and Ukraine was access to his father, then vice president of the U.S. Hunter not only compromised his father but set him up for blackmail.

Now, as president, Joe Biden is in the unenviable position of having to stand up to two enemies—Russia and China—who likely have evidence damaging to his presidency. Neither Russia nor China have yet publicly released information damning to Joe Biden. This may be because they want him—hapless, easily manipulated and cognitively challenged—right where he is: in the White House. His replacement, Vice President Kamala Harris, could be even more difficult to control.

There already appears to be sufficient evidence against Hunter Biden to convict him of what is likely to be illegal influence peddling—but what about Joe? Did Joe Biden use his position as vice president to arrange lucrative business deals for his hapless, drug abusing, sex-addicted son? Is our president compromised by his actions on behalf of Hunter and his brother James?

The mainstream media refuses to acknowledge the elephant in the room: Was Joe Biden actually part of Hunter's deals? Is he the "big guy" mentioned in the now infamous email of May 13, 2017, authored by James Gilliar of the international consulting firm J2cR? This email contains a line that may eventually open the Pandora's box of "Bidengate." It reads: "10 held by H for the big guy?" There is little doubt the "H" mentioned in the May 13 email is Hunter and the "10" refers to $10 million. It is difficult to draw any conclusion other than the "big guy" is Joe Biden.

As you contemplate the questions we raise and the mainstream media's continued denial of Joe Biden's involvement in his son's treacherous dealings with foreign governments, consider one more question: How did a lifelong politician who often claimed to be the "poorest man in the United States Senate" suddenly become a multimillionaire on the vice president's salary, which in 2017 was $230,700?

Unless the Biden administration's Justice Department quashes the investigation being conducted by John Durham, the questions we raise will eventually be answered. In the meantime, our advice for Americans who want to know the truth behind this sordid scandal is simple: Never underestimate the power of blackmail. Foreign governments—the Chinese Communist Party in particular—are masters at using blackmail to gain influence and hold people in positions of power hostage.

Consider the words of Christopher Wray, director of the FBI, speaking to the Hudson Institute in July 2020: ". . . China uses a diverse range of sophisticated techniques—everything from cyber intrusions to corrupting trusted insiders" to gain influence. Wray goes on to say blackmail is one of the CCP's favorite tactics for corrupting powerful insiders. Is the Biden family corrupt?

“The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall protect each of them against Invasion.”

So reads Article IV, Section 4 of the Constitution.

Historically, that constitutional duty—to protect America’s states against invasion—has been the province of the president of the United States, the chief executive, who today is Joe Biden.

How did Biden’s predecessors do in discharging their duty to secure America’s borders?

- During the War of 1812, President James Madison assigned the defense of New Orleans against an invading British army that had just burned the Capitol and White House to Gen. Andrew Jackson.

- On Jan. 8, 1815, Jackson crushed the battle-hardened and numerically superior British force that had invaded our country. Jackson was also the chosen instrument of President James Monroe to punish and expel Indian marauders raiding Georgia from Spanish Florida in 1818. Exceeding his mandate, the resolute Jackson entered Florida, expelled the Spanish governor and annexed the peninsula for the United States after executing two British subjects and almost igniting a war with Great Britain.

- In 1845, President James K. Polk sent an American army to Texas to validate our claim to all the land north of the Rio Grande that had belonged to the Lone Star Republic when it seceded from Mexico in 1836 and joined the Union in December of 1845.

- President Andrew Johnson sent an army to the Mexican border to effect the removal of a French army and Paris-backed regime that had colonized Mexico while the Union was preoccupied with the Confederacy. The French departed, leaving behind the hapless Habsburg emperor they had installed to face a firing squad.

- When Pancho Villa conducted his murderous raid into Columbus, New Mexico, in 1916, Woodrow Wilson sent Gen. John Pershing with an army of 6,000 into Mexico to run him down. They never caught Villa.

- By Dwight Eisenhower’s first term, one million illegal immigrants had moved into the United States from Mexico. Ike commissioned his friend and West Point classmate Gen. Joseph Swing to effect their removal.

All of these incidents involved America’s southern border, and each of the presidents of that day took seriously their constitutional duty to defend the nation’s borders against invasion, violent or nonviolent.

And how has President Joe Biden discharged that obligation?

Migrants are steadily converting America from a First World Western nation into a predominantly Third World country. What do these endless thousands of migrants at the southern gates of our country bring with them? A desire for a better life, surely, but also a vast dependency on a deeply indebted America for social welfare, housing, health care and education. Most come with little knowledge of our history, heritage and language. Their first act on the road to residency and eventual citizenship in this country is to break the laws of the United States by first breaking into our country.

By failing or refusing to do his constitutional duty to defend the nation from invasion, Biden is letting this happen. Through his passivity and inaction, he is remaking America.

An article by Gloria Romero (former Democratic leader of the California State Senate) titled “There’s Nothing Democrats Can Do to Stop Latinos From Abandoning Biden in Doves; When He and His Party Chose Socialism and Wokeism Over the American Dream, They Lost Us” was posted at daily-mail.co.uk on April 18, 2022. Following is the article.

Just in time for the upcoming celebrations of Cinco de Mayo, Latinos are sending unmistakable mutterings to the Biden Administration and the Democratic Party. The most recent tolling of the political bells was revealed in last week’s Quinnipiac poll, showing only 26 percent of Latinos approve of the way President Joe Biden is handling his job. That’s a nearly 10-point drop of Biden’s approval rating among Latinos from April 6th when he garnered a paltry 34 percent.

Latino discontent with this administration is obvious in even the bluest of states. According to the April 13th survey results released by the Berkeley Institute of Governmental Studies—only 51 percent of Latino voters in the Democratic stronghold of California approve of the job Biden is doing. That’s a precipitous drop compared to a 69 percent approval rating the year prior.

Latino consultants (the political coyotes) are lining up to get hefty financial contracts, promising the party elites that they’ll bring those bad, wandering sheep back to the Democratic plantation. But it’s too little, too late.

Not content to be ‘the little brown ones,’ Latinos—from Cuban Americans in Florida to Mexican Americans in Texas and beyond—are giving double middle fingers to the Democrats and their political coyotes. Trust me—this is my community.

I am a Latina and the former Democratic majority leader of the California State Senate. The first woman to ever hold that position. I represented one of the most Latino and Democratic areas in California: East L.A., the birthplace of the Chicano youth walkout over racism in education in the 1960s. Yet I, too, am on the brink of leaving the Party and the roots of my disillusionment run deep.

The media first began paying attention to this shifting political allegiance when significant numbers of Latinos defied the Democratic party label in 2016 and cast a vote for Donald J. Trump. But I, and many others in my community, have been observing this change over time. Seventy-one percent of Latinos supported President Barack Obama in 2012 then 66 percent went for Hillary Clinton and 59 percent voted for Joe Biden in 2020.

- You see, the problem for Democrats isn't the messages or the public relations and it's not for a lack of brown-skinned consultants.

- The problem is the party itself—and what it has come to represent.

Historically, Democrats have claimed to be the party of the working-class—the little guy—and pocketbook issues were essential. John F. Kennedy and Barack Obama (in his first presidential run) were aspirational, and they embraced the American Dream. Not anymore.

The modern progressive Democratic Party increasingly leans toward the following.

- Socialism
- Bewildering definitions of the genders
- Greater state-control of our children
- Infanticide defined as reproductive rights
- And of course, hostility to the idea of border and law enforcement.
- The Democratic Party is run by out-of-touch political elites who push a Green New Deal which we see as dinero for their pockets and Teslas in their driveways, but regressive tax policies for the rest of us.

And make no mistake about it: the puppet masters behind the Party understand that the choices they are making are not in the interests of Latinos. They don't care. These are not policies that help the working person. In fact, they hurt him, her, and their families.

The far-left, coddled by a senile Democratic president and incompetent Vice-President chosen by back-room operatives, viciously condemns conservatives and anyone else, who may be against this so-called 'progressive' push. But what these Democrats don't fully grasp is that Latinos are not the stereotypical 'little brown ones' of the past. What the Party is now understanding is that we do not feel beholden to a Party in which Brown Lives just seem not to matter. In greater numbers, that proverbial 'sleeping giant' is awakening to give the Grand Old Party a new look as we see our values ridiculed and culture canceled.

- Latinos largely embrace the American Dream. We know how to hustle, to work hard, to believe that 'si se puede.' According to the Small Business Administration, as of 2021 there are an estimated 4.65 million Latino-owned companies in the U.S., making Latino business owners the fastest-growing segment of this community, up 34% in the last 10 years.

- But instead of pursuing policies that reward hard work, Biden's gratuitous Covid relief spending has stoked inflation that is making it harder to earn a living.

- Latinos are also not about to abandon our mothers to now label them as birthing people. We even have two celebratory Mother's Days. Call our language sexist, but we don't care. Spanish is a gendered language that has existed for centuries, and we are not about to redefine ourselves with an 'x' to appease some out-of-touch college kids, who thought 'Latinx' would be less offensive to them.
- Latinos are very family-oriented, and while we have increasingly embraced change and confronted machismo in our culture, we are not interested in shoving explicitly sexual education in the faces of our ninos and ninas in their earliest school years. But those of us who reject these ideas risk being labeled as 'homophobes,' 'right-wingers,' 'Neanderthals' or 'the brown face of white supremacy' by the intolerant woke.
- Latinos understand that education is the key to the American Dream. But year after year, decade after decade, we see the chronic underperformance of public schools serving Latino students and the unwillingness of Democrats to support school choice. While in office I chaired both the Education Committee and oversaw prison reform.
- Democrats continuously bowed to the power of the biggest special interest in the Golden State: the California Teachers Union that buttered its bread off the poor, little black and brown bodies enrolled in a public education system that failed to serve them. Since leaving the Legislature in 2010, I have continued to fight for reforms in education. The choice is clear: kids vs. campaign contributions.
- Democratic Party-led efforts to defund the police fell flat in our neighborhoods. According to Los Angeles Police data, the surge in homicides since the beginning of the pandemic heavily impacted Latinos who account for 49 percent of the city's population but 50 percent of homicide victims during that period. Meanwhile, non-Latino whites, who make up 29 percent of the city's population, made up fewer than 8 percent of homicide victims.
- Lastly, what the Democratic Party is choosing to ignore is that Latinos are more likely to support patriotism, citizenship, and legal processes for immigration. We know that open borders—favored by big business and a Party intent on growing its consumer base for years to come—comes with real costs to the working-class communities in which newly arrived migrants are expected to settle in. No one should be surprised that the first signs of Latino discontent have occurred in south Texas precisely over the question of unfettered immigration.

This Cinco de Mayo, I anticipate that it will be Democratic Party operatives experiencing a hangover after the celebrations are over. What is needed is for the party to examine its own stereotypes of Latinos as second-class Democrats who would remain submissive to the party elders. Not so. And all the branding of Republicans as 'racist' has not built back our lives better.

Cinco de Mayo commemorates the anniversary of Mexico's victory over the French Empire at the Battle of Puebla on May 5, 1862, in which a smaller, poorly equipped Mexican force defeated the larger and better-armed French army. The victory represented a significant morale boost to the Mexican people in kicking out a would-be oppressor and helped establish a sense of national unity and patriotism. It has long been acknowledged as the 'ganas'—the will—to courageously stand up to the power of a Goliath without fear.

Undoubtedly, Latinos are waking up to wokeism and understand that the political coyotes in the form of Democratic Party elites have abandoned what the Democratic Party once proudly stood for.

An article by Don Woodsmall titled "The Climate Change Campaign" was posted at townhall.com on April 14, 2022. Following is the article.

Vladimir Putin is responsible for invading Ukraine, but he could not have funded this "special military operation" without help from our climate change lobby. The climate lobby makes possible Putin's financial geyser as Putin continues selling gas to Europe while the U.S. restricts production ostensibly because using our oil results in greenhouse gases damaging the planet.

Directly, the world is now on the brink of nuclear war because of Putin. Indirectly, we may face nuclear war because of climate change fanaticism that turned back the clock on U.S. energy production, drastically curtailing our income from energy production while boosting Putin's.

Disastrous U.S. energy policies created steep and onerous regulatory hurdles intended to chill and disincentivize—if not outright destroy—the oil and gas industry in our country. Eliminating the Keystone and other pipelines, terminating drilling rights on federal land, while subsidizing the illusion of wind and solar for all our energy needs sometime in the future, did nothing for the climate and everything for Putin's war effort.

Without Biden and the climate change cohort driving illogical and ill-informed energy policies, oil would be at $65 a barrel (with gas back under $2.50 per gallon), sanctions would still be on Russia, their Nord Stream 2 pipeline would be incomplete, Germany and others wouldn't be dependent on Russian oil, Putin wouldn't have the money to invade Ukraine, and the world would not be on the verge of nuclear war. All this, because of climate change.

Climate change focuses on carbon. Alarmists continue panicking about greenhouse gases, but what is the composition of our atmosphere and how much of it is actually composed of CO<sub>2</sub>?

According to NASA, "The air in Earth's atmosphere is made up of approximately 78 percent nitrogen and 21 percent oxygen. Air also has small amounts of other gases, too, such as carbon dioxide, neon, ozone and hydrogen."

Atmospheric CO<sub>2</sub> equals 4 parts per 10,000, and three hundred years ago that number was approximately 3 parts of CO<sub>2</sub> per 10,000. Not much of a jump.

The amount of CO<sub>2</sub> in the earth's atmosphere has been constantly changing. With the spectacular increase of carbon fuels since the dawn of the Industrial Revolution, we added 1 part of CO<sub>2</sub> per 10,000 parts of our atmosphere. We know this from borings in the polar ice caps which can trace levels from the past. We also know that at one time in earth's history that CO<sub>2</sub> was as high as 227 parts per 10,000. Since CO<sub>2</sub> is essential for plants to make oxygen, we also know that life could not exist on earth if CO<sub>2</sub> were below 1.75 parts per 10,000.

- Many things add CO<sub>2</sub> to our atmosphere, such as forest fires, volcanoes, the ocean (yes, the ocean is a naturally occurring and large "polluting" source for CO<sub>2</sub>) and man's burning of fossil fuels.
- Some estimates put humankind's contribution as low as 10% of the extra 1 part per 10,000 added since the Industrial Revolution.
- And no, CO<sub>2</sub> does not have superior heat-trapping properties compared to say, water vapor.
- In fact, an H<sub>2</sub>O molecule traps 7 times the heat a CO<sub>2</sub> molecule traps.
- In our atmosphere, H<sub>2</sub>O is, on average, 200 parts per 10,000, compared to 4 parts per 10,000 for carbon dioxide.
- So, there is 50 times as much H<sub>2</sub>O in our atmosphere, and it traps seven times the heat of CO<sub>2</sub>. H<sub>2</sub>O is therefore 350 times more pernicious than CO<sub>2</sub>.
- Why is there no worldwide campaign to eliminate or reduce water vapor? Because it's a tougher sell, and it wouldn't require the elimination of fossil fuels.

The climate change alarmists aren't the direct cause of the dangerous situation the world is in, but without them and their campaign we wouldn't be in this position. But be careful how you connect the dots while explaining this. Your audience might also believe that a "nuclear winter" caused by their climate change campaign will have a cooling effect on the planet and entitle them to carbon offset credits. It's about as plausible as what they believe in now.

It is well past time to educate Americans about how little carbon dioxide there is in our atmosphere, how little humans have contributed to it, that there are hundreds if not thousands of variables that create changes in weather, and that all decisions must be based on a cost-benefit analyses.

Climate lobbyists might be surprised at the either/or choice they've saddled us with. Either we live with a minimal potential rise in average earth temperature or nuclear war. It's up to us to decide.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the LORD while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the LORD, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the LORD. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
