Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Ben Shapiro titled “The Media’s Big Lie About the ‘Great Replacement Theory’ and Conservatism” was posted at creators.com on May 18, 2022. Following is the article.

This week, a racist mass shooter massacred 10 people and wounded three others at a Buffalo, New York, supermarket. The shooter was a white supremacist; his hate-filled 180-page screed about why he had committed the shooting was replete with neo-Nazi sentiments.

According to the shooter, he had to slaughter innocent black Americans in order to prevent the white population of the United States from being crowded out. “We are experiencing an invasion on a level never seen before in history,” wrote the perverse murderer. “This is ethnic replacement. This is cultural replacement. This is racial replacement. This is WHITE GENOCIDE.”

The shooter’s theory, generally called the “great replacement theory,” suggests that a shadowy cabal of elites, mainly Jewish, have deliberately undermined the racial purity of European countries by facilitating mass immigration and race-mixing.

The shooter deliberately quoted the neo-Nazi slogan—the so-called 14 Words—“We must secure the existence of our people and a future for white children.”

He called himself a white supremacist, a neo-Nazi and an antisemite. Among the sources for this morally sick belief system, the shooter cited various internet sources, particularly other mass shooters who released similar manifestoes.

He did not mention Fox News; he did not mention any mainstream conservative, instead stating, “conservatism is corporatism in disguise, I want no part of it.”

None of this mattered to the Left-wing press, which immediately determined that the entire conservative movement was somehow guilty for the mass shooting.

■ The New York Times headlined, “Republicans Play on Fears of ‘Great Replacement’ in Bid for Base Voters.”

■ The Washington Post accused Rep. Elise Stefanik, R-N.Y., of “echo(ing) racist theory allegedly espoused by Buffalo suspect.”

What evidence did the media provide to the effect that conservatives, broadly writ, had espoused the Great Replacement Theory?

They cited the belief among conservatives that the Left is generally friendly toward loose immigration in order to move the country in a progressive manner.

Philip Bump of The Washington Post stated that nearly half of Republicans believed in the great replacement theory, citing a Pew poll that found that almost half of Republicans (and more than one in five Democrats) believed that “there is a group of people in this country who are trying to replace native-born Americans with immigrants who agree with their political views.”

This, of course, is not the great replacement theory, which centers on racial purity rather than the idea that changing demographics have an effect on political orientation. The latter premise has been taken for granted by the Left for decades (even though it is largely faulty, as changing Hispanic voting patterns demonstrate).

In fact, the Left has often argued in favor of demographic change turning the country bluer.

- In 2003, John Judis and Ruy Teixeira wrote a book titled “The Emerging Democratic Majority,” in which they argued that Democrats were building a new electoral coalition “in which white America is supplanted by multiracial, multiethnic America.”

- In 2012, Greg Sargent of The Washington Post observed, “The story of this election will be all about demographics... Rather than reverting to the older, whiter, more male version (of America’s electorate) Republicans had hoped for, it continues to be defined by what Ron Brownstein has called the ‘coalition of the ascendant’—minorities, young voters, and college educated whites, particularly women.”

- In 2013, the Center for American Progress stated, “Supporting real immigration reform that contains a pathway to citizenship for our nation’s 11 million undocumented immigrants is the only way to maintain electoral strength in the future.”

The goal here is obvious: conflate Republican positions with white supremacy in order to drive votes away from them. It’s poisonous politics, and it happens to be a lie. But truth is of little or no priority when it comes to Left-wing politics, which are rooted always and forever in the idea that those who oppose their favored policies must be destroyed with any tool at hand.

An article by Bill Donohue titled “Progressive Origins of ‘Replacement Theory’ ” was posted at cnsnews.com on May 19, 2022. Following is the article.

When Naomi Judd was found dead, the media immediately said she died of “mental illness.” This was a lie. The truth then came out—she shot herself.

Why didn’t the media say that Payton Gendron, the serial Buffalo killer, shot his victims because he was suffering from mental illness? It happens to be true—he had recently been taken in for a mental health evaluation after threatening to kill his high school class (he had previously stabbed and beheaded a cat).

The media saw a bigger story here. Who cares about his mental state—it was a white kid who shot black people. Had Gendron been black, it would have been a one-day story.

The pundits and politicians were not content to blame one deranged white high school student—they had to cast their net high and wide, looking for a wholesale indictment of America.

It is true that the killer said some nutty things—he is a nutty kid. Some of what he said is patently racist. This gave the Left the opportunity to pounce—he was motivated by a radical desire to stop what he viewed as the “replacement” of white people with nonwhite people. Hence, he was an exponent of the “great replacement theory,” whether he knew it or not.

On May 16, two days after the shooting, Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer (D-NY) explained that what Gendron did was the fulfillment of the “great replacement theory.” The next day, President Biden repeated this accusation. Now the chattering class can’t shut up about it.

If these progressive members of the ruling class were better educated, they would know that the origins of “replacement theory” can be traced to the ruling class members of the Progressive Era, people just like themselves, not with right-wing nuts.

Madison Grant was the originator of “replacement theory.” He was a product of Yale College (1887) and Columbia Law School. He came from a blue-blooded background, or what Biden and Schumer would call the beneficiary of white privilege. He was one of the most prominent environmentalists of his time—he was an ally of Teddy Roosevelt—and a wildlife zoologist. Indeed, he contributed to the founding of the Bronx Zoo.

Grant not only wanted more human control over the environment; he wanted more human control over the human race. He was a eugenicist.

His 1916 book, “The Passing of the Great Race,” made him the intellectual godfather of the “great replacement theory.” He wrote that “indiscriminate efforts to preserve babies among the lower classes often result in serious injury to the race . . . mistaken regard for what are believed to be divine laws and sentimental belief in the sanctity of life tend to prevent the elimination of defective infants and the sterilization of such adults as are themselves of no value to the community.”

According to Daniel Okrent, who wrote a history of eugenics, Hitler was a big fan of Grant. “Hitler studied ‘The Passing’ enthusiastically, cited it in speeches and other writings and at the time of his suicide, in the Berlin bunker in 1945, still owned a copy of the original German edition, ‘warmly inscribed’ to him by the German publisher.”

Grant’s ideas were behind the 1924 Immigration Act. It was aimed at curtailing immigration from Southern and Eastern Europe, many of whom were Italian or Polish. The ruling WASP elites not only wanted to maintain Nordic hegemony; they wanted to stop the migration of Catholics.

Grant was not alone in his fondness to control the human race. Princeton University professor Thomas C. Leonard, who wrote “Illiberal Reformers: Race, Eugenics & American Economics in the Progressive Era,” notes that “Hundreds, perhaps thousands of Progressive Era scholars and scientists proudly called themselves eugenicists.”

One of the leaders of the eugenics movement during the Progressive Era was Richard T. Ely, cofounder of the American Economic Association. He wrote that “Negroes, are for the most part grownup children, and should be treated as such.” Margaret Sanger, founder of Planned Parenthood, agreed with his racist views.

The Catholic Church has a proud record of resisting the eugenics movement. They called it inhumane. Bioethicist and priest John C. Berry writes that Catholics appreciated the Church's response. "This was heartfelt, since Catholics, with many of their numbers among the Irish and other immigrant groups in the lower social strata in both the United Kingdom and the United States, were routinely castigated as a dysgenic presence in society. Catholics often found themselves the target of the eugenic rhetoric of revulsion, even from eugenic enthusiasts in other churches."

If Schumer and Biden, and all of those on the Left who are enthralled with "replacement theory," want to learn more about those who saw this kind of thinking as having disastrous consequences, let them read Pope Pius XI's 1930 encyclical Casti Connubii ("On Christian Marriage"). It is a brilliant take-down of the eugenic laws that inspired "replacement theory."

The truth is that today's ruling-class progressives share a philosophical pedigree with the ruling-class members of the Progressive Era. "Replacement theory" would not exist without them.

An article by Oliver L. North and David L. Goetsch titled "Assault on the Sanctity of Human Life" was posted at creators.com on May 17, 2022. Following is the article.

For nearly two weeks, thousands of pro-abortion activists have been protesting at the Supreme Court—and at the homes of several justices—hoping to prevent the court from reversing the Jan. 22, 1973, Roe v. Wade decision granting women the right to choose death for their unborn babies without government restrictions. Since then, more than 60 million babies have been murdered. But Roe did more than legalize infanticide; it launched an assault on the sanctity of human life. This past weekend, two mass shootings provided further proof of this assertion.

On Saturday, May 14, while pro-abortion protesters were threatening the safety of Justices Samuel Alito, Clarence Thomas, Brett Kavanaugh and Amy Coney Barrett, a hate-filled 18-year-old drove more than three hours to Buffalo, New York, to kill 10 and wound three mostly Black Americans. He told investigators all he cared about was the color of their skin.

On Sunday, May 15, a lone gunman opened fire in Geneva Presbyterian Church in Orange County, California, killing one parishioner and seriously wounding four more. At this point we don't know his motive, but we do know he has no regard for the sanctity of human life.

In our new book, "Tragic Consequences: The Price America is Paying for Rejecting God and How to Reclaim Our Culture for Christ" (available at Faithfultext.com and all other major booksellers), we warn of the destructive consequences of pushing God out of our culture. Chapters 3 and 4 deal with both issues—abortion and mass shootings.

No consequence of rejecting God equals abortion in its devastating effects. A society that chooses death for unborn babies places no value on human life. This is why such tragedies as mass shootings, gun violence, road rage, human trafficking and child abuse have become common in America. These travesties are defining characteristics of a Godless culture.

Abortion advocates fear the Supreme Court will shine a light on this heinous practice. An open, honest debate on abortion is a nightmare for its advocates. They scrupulously avoid using the word abortion because it describes the barbaric act they support. This is why they engage in semantic subterfuge, calling abortion “choice” instead of what it is: the murder of a baby. It’s why they call an unborn baby a “fetus.” Referring to a human being growing in its mother’s womb as a baby—as President Joe Biden recently did—would require advocates to admit abortion kills an innocent child.

The number of abortions performed in America annually is declining slightly but still exceeds 600,000. Truth may yet prevail. If abortion is a good thing, there would be no need to engage in semantic subterfuge. If it were righteous, people would call it what it is. If abortion weren’t an abomination, abortion practitioners wouldn’t resort to dehumanizing an unborn baby by calling it a “choice.”

Abortion advocates argue their cause by citing rape and incest. But these represent a tiny percentage of abortions performed in America and do not justify murder. The overwhelming majority of abortions are performed for convenience. More than 90% of abortions are performed on healthy women carrying healthy babies.

According to the organization Feminists for Life of America, the reasons women give most often for choosing abortion are the following.

- The timing is not good; I’m not ready.
- I cannot afford a baby at this time.
- People depend on me. I have grown children. I’m done with having children.
- My relationship is already troubled; I don’t want to become a single mother.
- I am too young to be a mother.
- A child would interfere with my education or career plans.

Is inconvenience a sufficient reason to murder a baby?

Does hatred justify mass murder?

We better pray for the restoration of the sanctity of life.

An article by R. Emmett Tyrrell titled “Windy City Pits Right-Wing Passion Against Left-Wing Anger” was posted at cnsnews.com on May 19, 2022. Following is the article.

I am in the Windy City. Why is not Washington called the Windy City or the Windiest City? I came with my wife to attend a meeting of the fabled Federalist Society. She is a member of the Society and will participate with all the other assembled lawyers. I shall, for a change, merely listen.

I was raised in Chicago, where I have many happy memories. Actually, I made my first public appearance here in Chicago when I was all of 5 years old. I appeared with my younger sister, Pattie. We appeared at the Chicago Police's monument to those officers killed in the Haymarket Riot of 1886. My great-grandfather was for some years the last survivor of the riot, but he had died, and we Tyrrells of the younger generation were adjudged likely stand-ins. As I recall, I said nothing of any relevance, nor did my sister, but at least she was cute.

Years later, during the Vietnam War, some left-wing protesters bombed the monument, and the police had to bring the monument indoors. I was not around to protest the war, but I would like to have had an opportunity to protest the protesters.

The leading plotter was Bill Ayers, a notable in the Students for a Democratic Society. He later became an intimate of Barack Obama, who eventually became president of the United States. Bill has never mellowed. He was interviewed about the time of the 9/11 attacks and expressed his regret that he did not construct more bombs similar to his Haymarket explosives. I believe he has spent his post-Haymarket years as a lecturer to students at some Chicago-area college. I do not know how heavily his lectures now stress bomb-making or even the North Vietnamese, but you can be sure that he is still very angry.

The Federalist Society is one of the most potent organizations of the conservative movement.

- There will be no bomb-makers in attendance, only serene spokesmen or spokeswomanes for various points of view.

That is one of the ways the Federalist Society differs from left-wing groups that are modeled after the society. There are often slightly different points of view championed by its members—for instance, originalism or strict constructionism. It makes for lively discussions and fertile conclusions. After belief in the rule of law and adherence to the Constitution, there is a great deal of nuance at the Federalists' meetings.

- There will be no bloodcurdling yells at the Federalist Society.

There is passion for the Constitution, but no anger. I cannot imagine anyone exhorting the assembled to march on the Capitol or to deface a statue. That is not the case with the Federalist Society's opponents.

- Right now, the leftists are defacing churches, marching on the homes of Supreme Court justices, and causing barricades and fences to be put up around government edifices.

- I can remember the days long past when what were still called liberals would eloquently and passionately defend free speech. Such genuine liberals would never attack the private property of a religious institution or even of an irreligious institution. Such days are long gone.

- Such liberals are long gone. I think they began to disappear when the liberals began to celebrate anger.

At any rate, anger is now celebrated, and violence is allowed, and the liberals are no more.

I had hoped that the mayor of Chicago might stop by the Federalist Society meeting. The city is a shambles. The society might be able to help. But Mayor Lori Lightfoot has other matters on her mind.

I am told that she is going to arrange for free abortions for Chicago women. She is arranging free abortions for women from out of state; possibly, she will be arranging abortions for women from out of the country. She seems to see abortion as a positive good in and of itself. How about abortions for transgender people? It could be coming.

In the meantime, much of Michigan Avenue is boarded up. Once one of the great shopping districts of the country, it is now paralyzed. Crime both petty and capital is 24/7. People are fleeing the city in a mob exit, and murder numbers last year were the worst in 25 years.

Most of the killings are Black on Black. Where is the Black Lives Matter crowd when we need it? What is more, Chicago is but one of a dozen Democrat-run hellholes. I am heading back to Washington.

An article by John Leonard titled "Beating Pro-Abortion Arguments" was posted at americanthinker.com on May 13, 2022. Following is the article.

Most "prochoice" arguments are infantile and easily refuted with scientific evidence.

- For example, the "fetus is nothing but a clump of cells" argument is effectively negated by the counterpoint that from the moment of conception, that so-called "clump of cells" has unique DNA not exactly like any other living organism on the planet (barring identical siblings, of course) and thus has autonomy.

- The debate then inevitably shifts to the "exceptions" argument for the product of rape or incest, an extremely small minority of total abortions per year. However, adoption exists as a viable alternative to abortion in those cases.

- Or, the pro-abortion crowd might compare the fetus to a tumor, but tumors don't have unique DNA and can never exist outside the body as a completely separate and sentient entity.

No, the very best pro-abortion arguments are the ones where the point of contention that the child is a separate, living organism is conceded, and the issue only becomes a question of whether a mother can be legally forced to give birth to her child.

The "violinist" argument is a thought exercise in which the pro-life advocate is asked to consider the following scenario: imagine you wake up one morning to find yourself in a hospital, tethered by machines to a total stranger. The doctors come in and explain that the stranger is a world-famous violinist, and the society of music lovers decided to save his life by kidnapping you and attaching him to you because your body has been determined to be the only one in the world capable of sustaining him for the next nine months. The point is to say the violinist is a human person with the same dignity and equal right to life as you, but he doesn't have the right to use your body without your consent.

Staunch prolife advocate Stephanie Gray Connors faced a variation of the violinist argument during her debate with philosophy professor Andrew Sneddon in which he said, "I'm going to agree for the sake of argument that the embryo is a human person with the same right to life as all of us. But abortion is justified in the following manner—imagine this analogy. You are a parent. You have a born child, and you love your child. Your child suddenly gets sick with kidney disease and is going to die unless your child gets a kidney transplant. Imagine that you're the only person in the world with the right body type so as to be able to donate one of your kidneys and in doing so, save your child's life.

Now, would it be nice of you as a parent to give one of your kidneys to your child? Yes, it would.

Would it save your child's life? Yes.

Would it kill you? No, you have two kidneys.

But should the law force a parent to give their kidney to their child? No. Just as a parent should not have a legal obligation to give their born child their kidney, the mother has no legal obligation to give her preborn child her uterus.

An article by Stephen Moore titled "When the People Tasked With Protecting Our Children Are the Villains" was posted at creators.com on May 17, 2022. Following is the article.

The evidence shows that school closures during covid were an epic public policy blunder. The school lockdowns in many states were arguably the most significant episode of government-sponsored child abuse in American history.

You don't have to take my word for it. Last week, the liberal New York Times came to the same conclusion after an extensive investigation. The New York Times found: "Extended school closures appear to have done much more harm than good, and many school administrators probably could have recognized as much by the fall of 2020. In places where schools reopened that summer and fall, the spread of Covid was not noticeably worse than in places where schools remained closed."

The New York Times also found that the primary victims were the lowest-income children. Wealthy families found education alternatives for their children either in their homes or private schools. Children from low-income families barely participated in online lessons.

"This will probably be the largest increase in educational inequity in a generation," said Thomas Kane, an author of a Harvard study on the disparate impact of the covid lockdowns.

■ Politicians

The study also found that most of these school closures occurred "in major cities, which tend to be run by Democratic officials ... Republicans were generally quicker to reopen schools. High-poverty schools are also more likely to have unionized teachers, and some unions lobbied for remote schooling.” And all this time, you probably thought Democrats were the party that cares about children.

But there are other villains as well that need to be exposed. Who did this to our children?

■ Teachers’ unions

The teachers unions were probably the most shameful player, the worm in the education apple. Even after months of evidence that in-class instruction posed virtually no danger to children or teachers, they wouldn’t teach. They treated covid as a paid vacation, even as private and Catholic schools down the street were open. In September of last year, nearly 90% of the Chicago teachers even voted to go on strike after not teaching for six months.

■ Pediatricians

They weren’t the only ones in on the crime against our nation’s children. Let’s not forget about the inexcusable role of the American Academy of Pediatrics. This group of children’s doctors originally called for entire school openings for the 2020-21 school year. That was based on science.

But then, politics intervened. Two weeks later, the group did a sudden 180-degree reversal and joined in solidarity with the teachers unions calling for closing schools. They even signed joint statements with the unions.

It’s not hard to understand why the pediatricians pulled the rug out from beneath our children. Every study has shown that pediatricians are politically liberal and more so than any other medical group.

Pediatricians were regularly on TV or elsewhere in the news, falsely spooking parents about the dangers of sending children to school. It was propaganda—the big lie.

What is so chilling and unforgivable about this tale is that teachers and pediatricians are the people entrusted by parents and society at large to care for and educate children. They are supposed to have our sons’ and daughters’ best interests at stake regarding their health and well-being. But they selfishly put politics and paychecks ahead of child welfare.

So Democratic politicians, teachers unions and pediatricians formed an alliance to deny our children schooling. These are the people who sanctimoniously lecture us about the necessity of “following the science.” Yet they ignored it. They peddled fear, not facts, and perhaps Biden’s new ministry of “misinformation” might want to investigate them.

An article by Newt Gingrich titled “Mother’s Day or Birthing Person’s Day: You Decide” was posted at gingrich360.com on May 6, 2022. Following is the article.

As we celebrate Mother's Day on Sunday, we should be aware that the holiday could someday come to an end.

At the current rate of woke efforts to dominate and redefine our world, you could imagine a day when President Joe Biden announces that "Birthing Person's Day" will replace the obsolete, old fashioned, and exclusive "Mother's Day" holiday.

You may think I am exaggerating or overreacting to fringe leftwing nuttiness. However, sensitivity to the smallest possible minority—and deference toward the strangest behaviors—are key tenets of the growing secular theology of the woke Left.

Here's how the spread of leftwing radicalism works in practice: Ideas start out with a handful of weird extremists, and then they gradually become mainstreamed into the academic elite and the bureaucracies. They then become the norm in the news media, giant corporations, and in acceptable conversation. Finally, courts and government are used to impose the strange ideas on the country.

Don't be fooled, the replacement of "mother" with "birthing person" is already underway.

Consider these examples.

- The 2022 fiscal budget refers to "birthing people" in discussing maternal health challenges.

- Deputy Director of the Office of Management and Budget Shalanda Young defended the use of the term "birthing people" rather than "mother" in a June 2021 Congressional budget hearing. Young told the committee: "There are certain people who do not have gender identities that apply to female and male, so we think our language needs to be more inclusive on how we deal with complex issues."

- When asked directly if the administration would be replacing the term "mother" with "birthing people," Young said, "I think our official policy is to make sure that when people get service from their government that they feel included, and we're trying to use inclusive language."

- During a May 6, 2021, U.S. House hearing titled "Birthing While Black," Chairman Carolyn Maloney (NY-12) commented on high infant mortality rates for Black Americans saying: "The CDC estimates that 60 percent of these deaths are preventable. So, how does one of the most medically advanced nations in the world continue to fail Black birthing people at such high rates?" She went on to comment on "the way we approach health care for birthing people of color." At least four other committee members referred to "birthing people" in the hearing.

This isn't a fad. It's a trend. In the leftwing of the Democrat Party, "mother" is a disappearing term, and "birthing people" is its replacement.

- During Black Maternal Health Week, Sen. Cory Booker (D-NJ) and Rep. Lauren Underwood (D-IL-14) released a press release honoring "Black birthing people."

■ On March 23, Dr. Michelle Morse, Chief Medical Officer of the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, tweeted: “The urgency of this moment is clear. Mortality rates of birthing people are too high.”

The intellectual background to the replacement of “mother” with “birthing person” was captured in a Sept. 17, 2021 interview for The Atlantic between Emma Green and Deputy Legal Director of the American Civil Liberties Union Louise Melling.

Emma Green: Why do you believe it’s important to shift our language around gender and pregnancy?

Louise Melling: First of all, if we’re talking about “pregnant people,” that language says to people—to transgender men and to nonbinary people—“we see you.” It should do a fair amount of work to help address discrimination. If we talk about “pregnant people,” it’s a reminder to all of us to catch ourselves when we’re sitting in the waiting room at the GYN that we’re not going to stare at the man who’s there. We’re not going to be disconcerted.... “It is the reality that not only women seek abortions. It is not only women who are birthing.”

Just as the Biden administration now displays the Gay Pride Flag and the Transgender Flag in front of federal buildings—on flagpoles originally installed for the American flag—you can see the pattern building for the elimination of common language.

Further, the left’s drive to replace America with a radically different country is deeply serious and fanatic. It is a secular religious effort, rather than traditional political effort.

And holidays like Mother’s Day are at risk if the Left continues to win elections.

An article by Newt Gingrich titled “Gender Identity: Total Confusion” was posted at gingrich360.com on May 16, 2022. Following is the article.

Recently, a friend brought me the questionnaire people are asked to fill out so they can sign up to take the Law School Admission Test (LSAT).

More than 100,000 people take the LSAT every year, and the test has great influence on law school admissions.

The questionnaire, which is part of the online profile process one must go through to schedule an LSAT exam, currently includes the following section: Gender identity (choose all that apply).

- Agender
- Androgyne
- Demigender
- Genderqueer or gender fluid
- Man

- Transgender man
- Non-transgender man
- Questioning or unsure
- Woman
- Transgender woman
- Non-transgender woman
- Additional gender category/identity (please specify)
- Additional gender identity
- Prefer not to answer

I have four questions about this section of the LSAT application process.

- First, what do some of the words mean?

I confess, I could not immediately define agender, androgyne, demigender, and several others without looking them up.

- Second, what words are missing?

If you Google “number of genders” you get one list for 58 genders and another list for 72 genders. Which list is correct? How many extra genders should the LSAT process be asking about? If you go through the 58-gender and 72-gender lists and you find several are missing, send them to me. I am always open to learning. And given the evolving craziness of the woke world, I find I have more and more to learn just to keep up with the decadence and confusion of the modern Left.

- Third, why should someone applying for law school have to fill out this kind of personal information anyway? What does it have to do with taking a test—or being an effective lawyer?

The answer is simple. This is an instrument of discrimination. The third party which organizes the LSAT scheduling process likely packages this gender information with your profile and passes it on to law schools to which you apply. If you are a heterosexual white male conservative of Christian or Jewish faith, the odds are high you will be discriminated against. This questionnaire is an efficient instrument of that discrimination.

- Fourth, how many other applications for schools, jobs, associations, or other activities have this kind of personal information requirement?

I wanted to share the LSAT questionnaire because I thought it was a good example of the kind of insidious, pro-radical lifestyle biases and prejudices which are being introduced at every level of American society. The combined impact of Big Government Socialism and the woke cultural Left is pervasive and persistent throughout American life and culture.

There is no intrusion too personal, no part of your life too private, or no thought too intimate for the woke Left to leave alone. The Left has a totalitarian need to intrude everywhere on everything—and to invent and then impose a new world on a nation that does not agree but faces endless coercion.

The LSAT questionnaire is just one more example of imposed wokeness, thought policing, and pervasive and effective discrimination.

An article by Steve Rose titled “Woke Hypocrisy: A User’s Guide” was posted at americanthinker.com on May 14, 2022. Following is the article.

Wokeism is not what it pretends to be.

It fools a lot of people by pretending to be about high ideals. It pretends to struggle against injustice, overcome oppression, and so on.

But in reality, it’s something very different. For many more of us, the scam is clear: the Woke simply want power. They just want to rule over the rest of us. They’ve already made astounding progress toward this goal.

How are they pulling this off? They’re working to invent a flood of rules that we must live by, but they don’t. They want two sets of rules—some for us, others for them.

- For example: Offending them is a terrible thing. It’s so terrible, in fact, that they’ve been trying to make it illegal to hurt their feelings. Yet they can offend us all the time.
- They insist that subjective feelings are profoundly important—important enough to write laws and even base entire societies on. Yet our feelings are routinely ignored, minimized, dismissed, mischaracterized, or forcefully suppressed.
- They justify everything they do based on their imaginary fantasies and utopian ideals, yet they dismiss everything we do because of the sinister aims they imagine we have.
- They insist that we “shouldn’t judge” other people, and any expression of disapproval of their behavior, however mild, is completely unacceptable. Yet they “judge” us—quite harshly—all the time.
- They insist on being allowed to be who they are, yet they refuse to let us be who we are.
- They insist that we’re such terrible people that they refuse to even engage in a dialogue or conversation with us. Yet they claim that we’re the ones who are intolerant.
- They claim the ability to know exactly what’s in our hearts (via their mind-reading skills, presumably), yet they insist that what’s happening in their hearts is something mysterious and profound that we can never understand.
- They claim that we can never understand them because we’ve never lived their experience, yet they claim to fully understand us even though they’ve never lived our experience.

- They insist on being judged solely by their good intentions, yet they insist on judging us solely by the imaginary motives they project onto us.
- To call them unflattering names, accidentally or otherwise, is a horrific crime, they say (despite their ever-shifting, incoherent, exhausting jargon regarding what they want to be called), Yet they call us truly horrific names all the time (“fascist,” “racist,” “hater,” “White supremacist,” etc.)
- They talk about race and gender relentlessly, as if those are the only important matters in life, yet they constantly accuse us of being racist and sexist.
- They constantly accuse us of racism and sexism, while they continually judge people, divide them into groups, and try to reorganize the entire world according to individuals’ gender or skin color.
- On the topic of males and females, they lecture us about the horror and intolerance of being “binary,” and insist (despite biological realities) that there are infinite shades of gray—yet they also declare that everyone is either a “Racist” or an “Anti-Racist,” and that’s it, those are the only two options.
- They psychologize all of our motives (“You’re really doing that because of X, Y, and Z”), yet they insist that their own motives are completely pure and noble. (This applies even when their motives are glaringly and transparently corrupt.)
- They insist on being allowed to define themselves, yet also insist that we can’t be allowed to define ourselves. They define themselves as heroic crusaders who fight Nazis, fascists, racists, etc. (which we’re also against, by the way)—but they refuse to acknowledge that we’re fighting evils as well, such as communists, tyrants, and totalitarians.
- They insist that everything they’re doing is based on hard facts, science, and “truth,” yet they’re constantly trying to create an entire legal framework based entirely on hurt feelings or subjective emotions.
- They pretend to be tragically wounded when they’re offended and claim that being offended is a horrific thing, yet they deliberately and unnecessarily choose to interpret harmless phrases and mundane acts in ways that are maximally offensive.
- They misrepresent our positions constantly, yet they continually complain about being misunderstood or misrepresented.
- They constantly silence us, yet they pretend to finally be championing the voiceless.
- They enjoy the full support of Big Tech, Big Business, Big Hollywood, Big Education, nearly the entire media establishment, the entire Democratic party in Washington, and a significant part of the Republican party, and yet they claim to be “oppressed.”
- They claim to be tolerant and compassionate, yet they openly mock, ridicule, and insult anyone they disagree with.

- They see themselves as creative and free-thinking individuals, yet they all think and act alike, and punish anyone who says anything outside of the approved narrative.
- They claim the ability to interpret anything and everything however they want, however absurd, and hide behind “lived experience” or subjective feelings as a defense of their interpretations (“I have a right to my opinion!”)—yet they declare that our interpretations and “lived experiences” are invalid.
- They work to deliberately bankrupt us, abolish most amendments, deliberately flood the country with non-citizens, corrupt and nationalize elections, abolish the electoral college, abandon the filibuster, pack the Supreme Court, add additional states to the union, ban political speech, they fly non-American flags at government departments, kneel to other causes in the Capitol building, and pledge allegiance to other (non-American) flags.
- They’ve already ruined or corrupted much of Hollywood, Big Media, Big Business, Big Tech, nearly our entire education system, the music industry, entertainment, etc.—yet they accuse us of being bad for the country.

The above are just a few examples of Woke hypocrisy. There are plenty more. Yet an awareness of this hypocrisy would have little effect on someone who was truly Woke. Why? Because the Woke are hypocritical about hypocrisy itself.

Most of us see phoniness and hypocrisy as bad things, and honesty and integrity as good. But a true Wokester could read all of the above, and say, “So what? Sure, I say one thing and do another. Yes, I want one set of rules for you and another for me. Sure, I seem like a hypocrite. But I’m doing it all for ‘a good cause’—my imaginary Utopian fantasy—and therefore, I’m morally justified to inflict in any horror I choose.”

Meanwhile, they aren’t afraid to use the “hypocrisy” charge against us. They constantly accuse us of falling short of our impossibly high ideals and use that imperfection to justify our total destruction.

Too many Americans are still blind to the true nature of Wokeism. It’s societal poison. It’s a fundamentalist cult, riddled with zealotry and intolerance, fueled by hysteria and moral narcissism. It’s an intellectual virus that has been deliberately engineered to destroy Western culture and replace it with a hellish Marxist dystopia.

We need more real Americans to understand what’s actually happening, and to inoculate ourselves against it before it’s too late.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
