Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Allen West titled "The Deranged Liberal World Order" was posted at townhall.com on July 18, 2022. Following is the article.

"What you heard from the president today is a clear articulation of the stakes. This is about the future of the liberal world order and we have to stand firm."
- Biden administration National Economic Council Director, Brian Deese

This quote came during an interview on CNN with Mr. Deese after President Biden responded that the American people would have to endure the exorbitantly high fuel prices as long as the conflagration in Ukraine continues.

In essence, what Brian Deese was expressing is what we would say in military vernacular, "embrace the suck." And the "suck" is the liberal world order, better known as the progressive socialist Marxist ideological agenda.

First, as a matter of political philosophical clarification, what the left desires really has nothing to do with classical liberalism, as advanced by John Locke, which is rooted in individual liberty and freedom. The socialist, globalist, linguistic manipulators of the left kidnapped the term liberal to mask their true Marxist nature.

This thing called the "liberal world order" is what then candidate Obama asserted back in late October 2008 in Columbia Missouri, the fundamental transformation of the United States of America.

Now, I spent some 22 years in the U.S. Army "embracing the suck" for a noble reason, supporting and defending the Constitution of the United States. I will not embrace the deranged concept of a liberal world order...and it appears that I am far from being alone.

Look at the recent developments in the country of Sri Lanka. They rejected the liberal world order, big time. Sri Lanka once boasted an ESG (environmental social governance) score of 98%. See, when you score high on the liberal world order, the end result is economic collapse, high energy and food costs, and equal sharing of misery.

As well, further evidence of the deranged liberal world order is in the Netherlands where farmers are rejecting the destruction of their livelihood due to high fertilizer costs, as well as fuel.

Hmm, does any of this sound familiar?

This is what President Biden and his incompetent economic council advisor Brian Deese are pushing upon the American people. Point of order, a recent report from real economists, Stephen Moore and Jon Decker of the Committee to Unleash Prosperity, examined the resumes of 68 Biden economic advisors and discovered over 60% had no business experience.

In other words, the deranged liberal world order is being advanced by economic "know-nothings"...remember that political party from the mid-1800s?

Well, these economic know-nothings are the reason why America has a 9.1% rate of consumer and an 11.3% rate of producer inflation. And this rising inflation is far outpacing the wage growth in America, but we are supposed to embrace this suck, the liberal world order.

The green new deal is so successful here in Texas that ERCOT (Electric Reliability Council of Texas) told Texans last week to tamp down energy use. The reason? Well, those wind turbines, which cause so many traffic delays being transported by trucks on roads, ain't turning because the wind ain't blowing. Even Tesla headquarters sent out a notice to Tesla owners in Texas to refrain from charging between the hours of 2-8pm. Energy sources should be dependable, accessible, and reliable.

What Texans have learned recently is that solar panels and wind turbines freeze over in the winter and wind fails in the summer. Heck, even Germany has decided to reopen coal fired plants.

Instead, our president jets off to Saudi Arabia to fist bump and beg a maniacal tyrant for energy resources when we have an abundance here, and a better quality. That is just stuck on stupid.

But the deranged liberal world order is not just about energy and food costs and inflation.

The dangerous liberal world order is one that promotes releasing violent criminals and felons from incarceration. While a bodega store worker who defended himself against a released criminal should be incarcerated.

This is a world order that does not believe you, the legal, law-abiding citizen, has the constitutional right to keep and bear arms for your self-defense and protection. As the Mayor of Philadelphia asserted, only police should possess firearms. How well did that work out for the helpless children in Uvalde Texas?

The liberal world order is a collection of delusional ideas and policies intent on tearing down the fabric of a civil society. It advances insidious open borders policy that enables a drug, sex, and human trafficking epidemic. It promotes the idea that men can get pregnant and biological males should compete against females...hence ending the achievements of Title IX.

The liberal world order would rather not teach our children reading, writing, math, and science, but about drag queens and gender modification procedures and hormonal therapies.

And most diabolical, is the liberal world order's insatiable thirst for murdering unborn babies.

No, we should not embrace the suck of the deranged liberal world order, which is a recipe for chaos, failure advanced by know-nothings and evil doers.

What we should be embracing is the foundation of the longest running constitutional republic the world has ever known—the U.S. Constitution and our free market economic system. That is what we embrace at the American Constitutional Rights Union...join us.

Steadfast and Loyal.

An article by Calvin Freiburger titled "Kamala Harris Dehumanizes the Preborn, Invokes Slavery, Claims Abortion Compatible With Religion" was posted at lifesitenews.com on July 19, 2022. Following is the article.

Vice President Kamala Harris released another volley of pro-abortion platitudes over the weekend, suggesting that the preborn are not "real human beings" and claiming that supporting the legal power to have them killed is fully compatible with religious faith.

Speaking Saturday at a gathering of Democrat lawmakers in Philadelphia, Harris invoked "public recent stories about what [the overturn of Roe v. Wade] means to real people, real human beings," a reference to the case in Ohio of a pregnant 10-year-old raped by her mother's illegal-immigrant boyfriend. "Not to mention the stories that have not been told and have yet to be told."

On Monday, Harris addressed the NAACP National Convention, where she claimed that "to support a woman's ability, not her government but her, to make that decision does not require anyone to abandon their faith or their beliefs. It just requires us to agree the government shouldn't be making that decision for her."

There, Harris also compared the banning of abortion to slavery: "we know, NAACP, that our country has a history of claiming ownership over human bodies."

In fact, long-settled biological criteria and mainstream medical textbooks establish that a living human being, structurally and genetically distinct from his or her mother, is created upon fertilization and is present throughout the entirety of pregnancy.

This is not in serious dispute; in 2019, University of Chicago Department of Comparative Human Development graduate Steve Jacobs found that 96% of more than 5,500 biologists he surveyed agreed, despite overwhelmingly identifying as "liberal," "pro-choice," and Democrats, and a majority identifying as "non-religious."

As for abortion's alleged compatibility with religion, there is a fundamental difference between sins of an individual nature, i.e. falling short of a religion's moral standards for how to live one's life, and evils of the sort that inflict harm—in the case of abortion, death—on someone else.

The Bible repeatedly condemns "murder" and "shed[ding] innocent blood" as "detestable to" the Lord, because "in the image of God has God made mankind."

Regarding the vice president's invocation of slavery, the opposite is the case; in fact, the parallels between legal abortion and legal slavery extend well beyond the obvious.

- Both denied the equality and humanity of an entire class of people in order to violate their fundamental rights (slaves on the basis of race; the preborn on the basis of developmental stage).
- Both were sustained by intensely controversial Supreme Court rulings (Roe; Dred Scott v. Sandford).
- Both even rested on similar arguments about personal freedom, America's founding principles, and human progress.

Roe v. Wade's overturn sparked the activation of numerous pre-Roe abortion bans that had gone unenforced for decades, as well as more recent pro-life laws that had been blocked by courts, and trigger laws designed not to take effect until Roe was reversed.

Across the country, abortion giant Planned Parenthood has suspended abortions and/or closed locations in reaction to the ruling, and pro-life attorneys general have declared their intentions to enforce their states' duly-enacted abortion prohibitions.

But leftists prosecutors in dozens of localities have vowed not to enforce such laws, ensuring that work and debate will continue over the prospect of banning abortion nationally.

Pro-abortion activists' emphasis on supporting interstate travel for abortion also presents a challenge to pro-life policymakers, though groups such as the Thomas More Society and National Association of Christian Lawmakers are currently exploring potential solutions.

President Joe Biden has called for electing more Democrats to Congress to support codifying a "right" to abortion-on-demand in federal law.

An article by Laura Hollis titled "The 'Green' Globalist Elites Will Make Serfs of Us All" was posted at townhall.com on July 21, 2022. Following is the article.

What do you call an economic system where a relative few individuals own all the land and most of the people who live on that land do so at the sufferance of the landowner?

It's feudalism.

This was the economic system in most of Europe during the Middle Ages. The vast majority of the population was born into, lived and died in poverty. There was little hope for upward mobility unless one opted for a career in military service or the clergy. (From time to time, extraordinarily pretty peasant girls might be married off to a lesser lord.)

The rise of mercantilism and the guild system in northern Europe brought major changes to European feudalism. Poor youth could be apprenticed to merchants and artisans where they learned a skill and a trade. After a time, apprentices could establish shops of their own. This system eventually created a middle class, and the economic power achieved by the guilds and their members soon translated to political power as well.

Russia, however, lagged hundreds of years behind the rest of Europe. Tsar Alexander II finally freed the country's serfs in 1861, when the rest of the world had already entered the Industrial Revolution.

The same wealthy Russians who had owned the farms soon owned the factories. The Russian poor went from being feudal peasants on rich farmland to half-starved factory workers in city tenements.

Despair and hopelessness created by centuries of exploitation laid the groundwork for the appeal of Karl Marx's writings. Russia's failure to include its poorest citizens in the advances of industrialization was among the driving forces behind the revolutions that would thrust Russia into communism for the next 70-plus years.

America's trajectory has been quite different.

- Our country was founded by men of faith with knowledge of history, politics and economics. We rejected monarchy and nobility.
- Our founding documents incorporate principles of universal human dignity and individual rights that not only formed the basis for a republican government elected by the people but also supported the notion of free enterprise.

Unlike Russia (and plenty of other countries) where capitalism and the means of production have been controlled by a small group of wealthy people who use their political power to limit access to others, the United States has had a system of entrepreneurial capitalism. Anyone—even noncitizens—could come here and start their own business. And millions have.

- America's system of entrepreneurial capitalism has been the breeding ground for the American Dream.
- It has done for this country what the guild system did for northern Europe, and then some.
- It has spawned unprecedented innovation, facilitated the creation and distribution of wealth, transformed the law of business enterprise and the widespread use of corporations, made investment and ownership of property and land accessible to the average person, and launched America's middle, upper-middle and even upper classes.

One would think that this extraordinarily successful system would be sought to be replicated around the globe. But that is not what appears to be happening.

Instead, we have a new class of globalist elites who believe that they should control the planet and the lives of everyone on it.

Economically secure and politically independent people are difficult to control, so we find ourselves in a situation where our economic security and our political independence are being threatened by those who have made their fortunes in the system they now seek to undermine.

There is no security without food. Global efforts to control farmland and farming, therefore, are creating worldwide worries.

Protests have erupted in the Netherlands in response to "green" regulations to reduce nitrogen emissions, which come mostly from farmers, by half.

(Similar regulations imposed in Sri Lanka destroyed that country's agricultural output and its economy.)

The Dutch government has stated that "there (will not be) a future for all farmers" to continue to operate, and EU politicians are calling for a certain percentage of farms to be closed or sold. "Solidarity" protests are now taking place in Germany, Poland, Italy and Spain.

China owns more than $2 billion in U.S. farmland. Microsoft founder and billionaire Bill Gates is now the largest private owner of farmland in the United States, with more than 270,000 acres. Just this month, he acquired another 2,100 acres of farmland in North Dakota. The purchase was originally blocked, but the state's attorney general ultimately permitted the sale to go through because the farmland "will be leased back to farmers."

Owning land is quite different from leasing it. A lease is just a contract. Contract terms can be changed. And contracts can be breached, at which point the nonbreaching party must bring a lawsuit for enforcement—assuming that he or she can even afford to do so. Imagine a tenant farmer going up against the attorneys Gates can afford to pay.

In other words, you're on the land at the sufferance of the landowner. Sound familiar?

Gates is an active member of the World Economic Forum and a zealous advocate of their so-called green policies to avert "climate change" disasters. Gates is pushing for wealthy countries to move to eating "synthetic meat." (And he is, unsurprisingly, a major investor in the companies that would produce it.)

Of course, if plastibeef isn't your thing, his climate change compadres insist that we eat bugs. And this is without mentioning the push to end private ownership of cars and suburbs with their single-family homes and green yards, forcing the public into densely populated concrete high-rises and onto public transportation.

But will Gates & Co. live this way? You're joking. They'll still have their multiple homes, their yachts, their chauffeured limousines, private jets and their meals of Wagyu beef. They will be able to afford everything because they will own everything.

Don't take my word for it.

In 2016, the WEF posted a video on Facebook and Twitter, titled "8 Predictions for 2030." The video states, "You'll own nothing and you'll be happy. Whatever you want, you'll rent, and it will be delivered by a drone."

Translation: "We'll own everything, and you'll be a serf."

An article by Penny Starr titled "Report: Climate Envoy [John] Kerry's Jet Has Emitted 300 Metric Tons of Pollution Since Biden Took Office" was posted at breitbart.com on July 20, 2022. Following is the article.

John Kerry, Joe Biden's Special Envoy for Climate, has spend his tenure jetting to events focusing on cutting carbon emissions while reportedly spewing 300 metric tons of the pollutant from his private aircraft.

As Breitbart News reported, Kerry jetted off to Europe on Tuesday to attend climate change-themed events: "The climate envoy is slated to jet off this week to the Petersberg Climate Dialogue, a UN summit where representatives from 40 countries will negotiate emissions reductions and climate financing for developing nations, in Berlin, Germany. The U.N. has previously released a statement confirming the gathering, saying only 'the agenda also includes a long-standing demand of many states particularly affected by the climate crisis: Financial support to cope with damage and losses due to climate change.' "

Fox News first reported on the statistics and asked Kerry about it: "When asked, Kerry's office suggested he would travel to the conference and return to the U.S. via commercial airline. His office similarly said he wouldn't travel to the WEF conference in May by private plane. 'No,' a Kerry spokesperson said in an email to Fox News Digital when asked if Kerry would travel to Germany via private jet. 'Secretary Kerry travels commercially or via military air in his role as Special Presidential Envoy for Climate,' the spokesperson added. Kerry's family jet, a Gulfstream GIV-SP, has made a total of 48 trips lasting more than 60 hours and emitted an estimated 715,886 pounds, or 325 metric tons, of carbon since President Biden was sworn into office, according to federal data obtained by Fox News Digital via FlightAware. The plane belongs to Flying Squirrel LLC., a charter company owned by Kerry's wife Teresa Heinz-Kerry and in which Kerry reported owning a more than $1 million stake on his most recent financial disclosure."

Fox News interviewed Daniel Turner, executive director of Power the Future about Kerry's rhetoric and behavior.

"The problem with folks like John Kerry and the climate hypocrites who run the green movement is that they want to use the coercive power of government," Daniel Turner, executive director of Power the Future, told Fox News Digital in an interview.

"They want to use it internationally with groups like the U.N., etc. They want to use the power of government to deny the rest of us the ability to use those fossil fuels that they take for granted."

"They refuse to voluntarily live how they want the rest of us to be forced to live," Turner said. "It doesn't just make them hypocrites, it makes them, quite frankly, a threat to the rights and freedoms of people around the world. When John Kerry voluntarily lives the way he wants the rest of us to be compelled to live, then we can talk about his climate goals."

An article by Beth Whitehead titled "Here's Why the Media Don't Want You to Know About the Massive Protests Going On Around the Globe" was posted at thefederalist.com on July 15, 2022. Following are excerpts of the article.

If you skim the front pages of major corporate news outlets, you'll find no mention of the economic protests raging in Spain, Morocco, Greece, and the United Kingdom.

On The Washington Post homepage these days, you'll find headlines such as, "How To Deal With A Chatty Coworker Who Won't Get Out Of Your Office," but you won't find mention of the more than 100,000 people protesting in Madrid.

At The New York Times, you'll find the story of a gay union entitled, "What's Two 'Yentas' Plus One Senator? A Lifetime Together", but you won't see a single heading on the more than 10,000 protesters in Athens.

Corporate media has largely glossed over the tens of thousands of farmers in the Netherlands who clogged up roadways and distributions centers by holding Canadian-trucker-convoy-style demonstrations to protest radical climate policies.

According to the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, which records protests worldwide, 11 countries are currently seeing protests of more than 1,000 people in response to the rising cost of living and other economic woes in 2022. As of July 5, Carnegie listed the following number of protests.

- France—120,000 people
- Spain—100,000
- Greece—10,000
- Kazakhstan—10,000
- Sri Lanka—10,000
- India—10,000
- Iran—5,000
- Peru—5,000
- Argentina—1,000
- Morocco—1,000
- U.K.—1,000

Of these 11 countries, only four made any major headlines. The corporate press oftentimes only highlights these economic protests when they get so loud they can no longer be ignored, as we saw with Kazakhstan's kill order to quell protests and the Sri Lankans' attack on their president's home.

Over the weekend, the biased media finally began covering the Sri Lanka protests that are over 10,000 people strong – but only because footage of demonstrators swarming the president's residence by the thousands on Saturday went viral.

The corporate media only highlight those world protests when they grow too big to ignore or when facts can be skewed toward their preferring narratives.

Cherry-picking which protests to highlight gives media cover to paint them as isolated incidents in non-Western countries--instead of a worldwide trend showing the consequences of embracing left-wing policies.

After all, Biden is making the same blunders in the United States, and corporate media can't have Americans connecting those dots.

An article by Katie Pavlich titled "New Medical Study Shows Covid Booster Shots May Be Harmful to the Immune System" was posted at townhall.com on July 20, 2022. Following is the article.

A new medical study published by The Lancet, a weekly peer-reviewed general medical journal, shows Wuhan coronavirus booster shots can be harmful to the immune system and can cause adverse effects. The study also shows that after 8-months, a vaccinated person has the same immunity levels against the virus as an unvaccinated individual.

"Recently, The Lancet published a study on the effectiveness of covid-19 vaccines and the waning of immunity with time. The study showed that immune function among vaccinated individuals 8 months after the administration of two doses of covid-19 vaccine was lower than that among the unvaccinated individuals. According to European Medicines Agency recommendations, frequent covid-19 booster shots could adversely affect the immune response and may not be feasible," the National Institutes of Health published in response to the study.

"The decrease in immunity can be caused by several factors such as N1-methyl-pseudouridine, the spike protein, lipid nanoparticles, antibody-dependent enhancement, and the original antigenic stimulus. These clinical alterations may explain the association reported between covid-19 vaccination and shingles. As a safety measure, further booster vaccinations should be discontinued," an NIH summary of the study continues.

Organ damage, especially among immunocompromised individuals, is also a concern.

"As the covid-19 pandemic becomes better controlled, vaccine sequelae are likely to become more apparent. It has been hypothesized that there will be an increase in cardiovascular diseases, especially acute coronary syndromes, caused by the spike proteins in genetic vaccines," an assessment in the NIH National Library of Medicine states. "Besides the risk of infections owing to lowered immune functions, there is a possible risk of unknown organ damage caused by the vaccine that has remained hidden without apparent clinical presentations, mainly in the circulatory system."

Last year the Biden administration, under advisement from Dr. Anthony Fauci and CDC Director Rochelle Walensky, engaged in a government wide campaign urging Americans to obtain a booster shot.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the LORD while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the LORD, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the LORD. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word be that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
