Luke 21:34-36—“But take heed to yourselves, lest your souls be weighed down with self-indulgence, and drunkenness, or the anxieties of this life, and that day come on you suddenly, like a falling trap; for it will come on all dwellers on the face of the whole earth. But beware of slumbering; and every moment pray that you may be fully strengthened to escape from all these coming evils, and to take your stand in the presence of the Son of Man” (Weymouth New Testament).

An article by Wen-Ti Sung titled “What the Taiwanese Opposition Leader’s Recent China Visit Means for Taipei, Beijing and Washington” was posted at atlanticcouncil.org on April 14, 2026. Following are excerpts of the article.

Taiwan and China just held a leadership-level summit, of sorts. This past week, Cheng Li-wun (the chairperson of Taiwan’s main opposition party, the Kuomintang, or KMT) made a rare visit to the People’s Republic of China (PRC).

It culminated in the much-anticipated summit between Cheng and Chinese President Xi Jinping in his capacity as the Chinese Communist Party’s (CCP) General Secretary.

For Beijing, Cheng’s visit is a key part of its latest experimentation with what could be called party-to-party diplomacy between the CCP and KMT – in place of government-to-government diplomacy between Beijing and Taipei.

The trip is notable for what Cheng and Xi said and for its far-reaching implications, but also for taking place at all.

It was the first visit to the PRC by a sitting KMT chair since 2016 – when then leader of the KMT (Hung Hsiu-chu) led a delegation to Beijing and Nanjing.

Like Cheng, Hung was a relative outsider within the KMT establishment and represented the more Beijing-friendly wing of the party.

None of the three KMT chairmen (who served between Hung and Cheng) visited the PRC. They were apparently deemed insufficiently amenable to Beijing to receive an invitation.

- What did Beijing want from this visit?

For starters, it likely wanted a cordial photo-op with Taiwan's opposition leader to take the wind out of the sails of US-Taiwan defense cooperation. The visuals of the two smiling leaders are designed to send three important signals.

1. There is still a sizable enough number of China doves inside Taiwan.
2. There is a Taiwanese leader capable of getting along with Xi.
3. Accommodation with Beijing remains a viable option for Taipei.

The best-case scenario for Beijing is that a successful KMT visit will help sideline the inconvenient issue of cross-strait tensions during the upcoming Trump-Xi summit – which is currently scheduled for May.

By extension, it may transform the tenor of that summit into a commercial meeting centered on business deals rather than a geopolitical talk focused on the thorny issues of strategic competition and deterrence.

And Beijing would much rather deal with US President Donald Trump as a businessman than as a geopolitician.

For its part, the KMT just proved itself to be the only major Taiwanese party with a direct line to Beijing. The Xi-Cheng photo-op strengthened the case for KMT's low-ball approach to the special defense budget.

For Cheng, the meeting with Xi was a crowning moment that sealed her place as the next standard-bearer of the KMT's Beijing-friendly faction – transforming her from a dark-horse candidate to be the chair just six months ago into a genuine political heavyweight.

In the short term, the Xi-Cheng meeting will likely tilt the KMT's internal balance of power in favor of its China dove wing.

How this all plays out remains to be seen. But for now, the Xi-Cheng summit seems to indicate a more Beijing-friendly KMT and greater uncertainty for US-Taiwan defense ties.

A post by the Washington Examiner titled “Governor Abigail Spanberger Ran One of the Most Fraudulently ‘Centrist’ Campaigns in the Country in Recent Years – It Got Her the Victory She Wanted, and Now Both She and Virginians Are Paying the Price for Her Duplicity” was posted at facebook.com on April 15, 2026.

An article by Shirleen Guerra titled “Spanberger (to Be Long Gone) Pledges Commitment to Process Resuming 2031” was posted at thecentersquare.com on April 22, 2026. Following are excerpts of the article.

Virginia officials, lawmakers and advocacy groups responded Tuesday after voters approved a constitutional amendment allowing lawmakers to redraw congressional districts ahead of the next census.

Democratic Governor Abigail Spanberger said voters “approved a temporary measure” and emphasized the state will return to its bipartisan redistricting process after the 2030 census.

Spanberger said: “I understand the urgency of winning congressional seats as a check on this president.”

She reiterated commitment to ensuring the redistricting commission resumes its role in the next cycle, though Spanberger’s only term as governor will end January 12, 2030 – months before the census is taken, and more than a year before the commission is scheduled to do the process.

An article by Mark Krikorian titled “The DIDNIDAD Act: Sweeping Amnesty and Expanded Legal Immigration (Parsing Immigration Policy, Episode 250)” was posted at cis.org (Center for Immigration Studies) on April 16, 2026. Following are excerpts of the article.

A new podcast episode features immigration policy expert Rosemary Jenks (Policy Director and co-founder of the Immigration Accountability Project) providing a detailed analysis of the DIGNIDAD Act introduced for the third time in six years by Rep. Maria Salazar (R-Florida).

Jenks characterizes the legislation as a broad amnesty proposal, referring to it as the “SAW Act” – short for “Screw All American Workers,” while also alluding to the 1986 Special Agricultural Worker program associated with widespread fraud.

Scope of amnesty

- Direct pathway to citizenship for an estimated 2.5 million “dreamers” – extending beyond current DACA recipients.
- Renewable temporary visas for individuals who entered before 2021, with weak documentation requirements that will invite fraud. These visas are indefinitely renewable, effectively allowing recipients to remain in the U.S. permanently.
- A “rolling amnesty” mechanism tied to family-based immigration, including marriage to U.S. citizens.

Enforcement and legal concerns

- A two-year deportation moratorium, allowing individuals (including those currently in detention) to avoid deportation and apply.
- Restrictions on using applicant information for enforcement, shielding employers who hired illegal alien workers.

- Concerns about increased incentives for fraud, including marriage fraud.

System capacity and security

- Skepticism about USCIS being able to manage a minimum of 10 million applications – numbers that will grow substantially if fraud is widespread.
- Strict time lines with rapid processing within a two-year window – raising concerns that vetting standards, particularly national security screening, would be among the first elements weakened under pressure (echoing issues seen in past programs)
- Doubts that application fees would cover the full cost, especially given applicants’ limited financial resources. Critics warn this could create openings for third-party financing – including from cartels.
- Historical comparisons to the 1986 amnesty program – where rapid processing contributed to massive fraud and lack of vetting.

Economic and labor market impact

- Impact on wages and job opportunities for low-medium and high-wage American workers.
- Expansion of legal immigration pathways – doubling employment-based green cards; codifying OPT and allowing STEM PhD and medical students to stay permanently in the country; and permitting those on the visa waiting list for 10 years to enter regardless of caps.

Isaiah 55:6-11—“Seek you the Lord while He may be found, call upon Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let him return to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. ‘For My thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways My ways,’ says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are My ways higher than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain comes down, and the snow from heaven, and do not return there, but water the earth, and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall My word by that goes forth from My mouth; it shall not return to Me void, but it shall accomplish what I please, and it shall prosper in the thing for which I sent it.”
